PSC STATEMENT On Major Electric Outages Caused by Storms

The Public Service Commission of Wisconsin (PSC) today stressed that people in areas where storms caused electric outages should put safety first.

The agency warned people to stay away from downed wires and make a special effort to educate children about staying as far away from downed wires as possible.

The PSC is also monitoring the efforts of We Energies and Wisconsin Public Service Corporation to restore power to customers. Reports from the utilities indicate that the damage is widespread and it will take time to get to all the different problem areas.

To report an outage, We Energies customers should call their electric outage toll-free hotline at 1-800-662-4797 and Wisconsin Public Service Corporation's customers should call their toll-free electric outage hotline at 1-800-450-7240.

In the event of an emergency, please call 911.
